G. S. Waid Climbs To the Top, But Always Remembers the G. H. "Boys"

Assistant General Manager of the G. H. & S. A. Gives Big, Strong Grip to Every Man Who Worked for Him in the El Paso Office.

It is not only in stature but in the modest reserve which is ever evident, George S. Waid, assistant general manager of the Galveston, Harrisburg & San Antonio railway, is in El Paso, looking over the scenes of his early conquests and guarding the interests of his road in court.

Significant of the man was the fact that he was but a few minutes in town Monday when he rushed to the G. H. office at Stanton street where he used to work. There he clasped the hand of every man who had worked for him. It wasn't any mollycoddle handshake, it was the big strong grip of the big, strong man. He had come to that little office to talk to "the boys." He took time to thank them for the way they remembered him. He didn't care as much about the beautiful silver set they had sent him. Silver sets are easily bought. But there was sentiment back of that one and nobody appreciated it more than George S. Waid.

Waid began life in the railroad service years ago. It was in Pennsylvania, near the town of Meadville. Then he elected, shortly after birth, that railroading was the profession for him. He took to it and he stuck to it. He started at the bottom and he has come out on top.

His first job was as telegraph operator on the second division of the Erie railroad. That was then known as the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio. He came to that job four years. Then he came to Texas. He got a job as brakeman in 1885 at San Antonio. He kept on up the ladder and in 1905, on the first day of May, he came to El Paso as trainmaster. He was a good trainmaster. He held that job for only two years. He didn't quit, not he; he wasn't of the quitting kind. Then he climbed up another round of the ladder and on January 1, 1907, he was appointed assistant superintendent.

It required only a few months for him to make the next step for in August 1907 he was appointed superintendent of the El Paso division. He remained in this city, called it home and liked it. Probably he would have remained here permanently but the call for a man in a bigger job was sounded. Waid was selected. It became necessary that he move to Houston. Waid went on October 1, 1912, as assistant general manager of the road.

But George S. Waid, assistant general manager of the G. H. road, is the same George S. Waid that was a telegraph operator back on the Erie road in 1885. He is just as kind, as cordial, as democratic as he was when he swung his powerful arms up over the top of a box car.

(By Garrett P. Serviss.)
We generally think of cave dwellings as having been used by men only in prehistoric times—tens of thousands or even scores of thousands of years ago. But, in fact, there are many cave dwellings that are still inhabited. And there are others, of immense extent, which have long disappeared from these lands.

Not Extensive.
But while the European caves are richer than ours in reminders of the kind of life led by our race many ages ago, they are less extensive and less imposing in the evidences which they show of the existence of communities of men living in populous towns. All composed of caverns and of communal houses built of adobe, containing, in some cases, as many as a thousand rooms.

Some remarkable specimens of such habitations are shown in the photographs above. In the first picture we see in the foreground, below the huge cliffs honeycombed with caves, a semi-circular communal house, the size of which may be judged from the great number of roofless chambers that remain. In one corner of the enclosure is seen the dark entrance to a subterranean council chamber, where the equivalents in that day of our polit-

The Great Bull Moose.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I MET a grate feller last nite, sed Pa. He is the bulliest Bull Moose that you ever seen. He thinks Roosevelt was the best feller that ever lived. I mean that he was down south. That's how much he thinks of our peerless leader of the progressives. As a matter of fact, sed Pa, that man Mister Roosevelt is a grate man. There is something stern and dominant about his personality, sed Pa, that draws men strangely toward him. Just then Pa's friend came up to the house & Pa introduced him to Ma. His name was Maj. Henry Knight, & he was a grand old veteran of the civil war. The way he talked about Mister Roosevelt, anybody wud think that Mister Roosevelt bilt the Seven Wonders of the world. I like to see a feller stick up for his friends, but a fine old soldier like Maj. Knight ought not to be that hot for all that. The civil war & that he came back from the civil war to boost a man wien fought in the war, sed Pa. I like to see a feller shot one lion & one little tiger & maybe a Spaniard.

You see, sed Pa, to him, it isn't the fact I am a personal friend of Mister Roosevelt so much as it is that I am strong for the platform on which he is standing on, sed Pa's friend, Mister Knight.

What is his platform, sed Ma?
Well, for one thing, sed Pa's friend, he believes in being progressive, & what does that mean? sed Ma. What do you mean by a man being progressive?

I mean that he is progressive, sed Pa. I mean that he does not go back. Progress means to go forward, sed Pa's friend. Do you gather the drift of my meaning?

Oh, I suppose so, sed Ma. I am not much interested in politics, sed Pa. But I am sure I have not made my meaning clear about Theodore Roosevelt & the principals for which he stands for, sed Pa's friend. I know that women are not much interested about politics, but this man for wien I am voting is so different that I feel that talk about furs is weak & foolish. The fortunes of the nation is trembling in the balance, as they was in the dark days of the civil war, it takes a strong, forceful man like Theodore Roosevelt or Abraham Lincoln to tell us what to do.

Yes, yes, I see, sed Ma. But I must have them furs, husband. It is getting awfully cold.

Why don't you dress to meet about Mister Roosevelt, sed Pa. He is a fine man & he believes in women's suffrage, sed Ma. I think it is a man's place to vote, Ma sed, & to buy furs.

Prepared to protect against the proposed enactment of a quarantine on Christmas trees and other holiday greenery produced in New England, State officials of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts are in Washington to seek to prove to the department of agriculture that the forest products used at Christmas time do not carry the eggs of the destructive spruce and brown tail moths.

TEXTBOOK BOARD
FACES DIFFICULTY
Fight Is Being Made by Confederate Veterans on Histories Which the Board Has Tentatively Adopted.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 3.—When the textbook board meets Wednesday it will be for the purpose of finally closing the contracts with the book publishing companies for the 46 different kinds of textbooks adopted. The majority of the books adopted had to be revised and before the board adjourned about two weeks ago, committees on revision were appointed to make the necessary changes, the books having been adopted with the distinct understanding that they would be subject to revision.

It is anticipated that the board will face a serious problem on the question of the final adoption of histories, especially the Adams and Trent's History of the United States. This book has been the cause of much criticism by Confederate veterans over the state and during the past two weeks the governor has received numerous communications from prominent Confederate veterans over the state protesting against the final adoption of this book unless it is materially revised. These protests and communications will be laid before the board by the governor for disposition.

JOHN D. TO BE "HELLO BOY."
John D. Rockefeller is having a new telephone system installed in his $1,000,000 mansion at Pocantico Hills, near Tarrytown, N. Y., and when it is ready for operation he will be his own "hello boy." This system is intercommunication and has three extensions. By pressing a button Mr. Rockefeller can get any room from any other room in the house and his conversations cannot be overheard by the central office, because when he talks he automatically cuts off the outside world.

Other natural caverns were enlarged or connected by passages, and sometimes the entire dwelling was of artificial formation. A curious fact is that in all parts of the world where cave

Healthy Mothers

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.
